STATE FARMING SITUATION LOOKING UP
Farming in general is looking up in Mississippi according to recent reports. Some fields are grassy and cotton is yet to be planted, however in Panola and Itawamba Counties cotton has been planted and some up to a good stand. In Perry County, some 200 acres of watermelons will be ready for market by the end of June. Nine-five per cent of the cotton and corn has been planted in Marshall County. Corn is making rapid growth, cucumbers are blooming and pastures are doing extremely well in Covington County. Farming conditions are improving throughout the State.

FEDERATED CO-OPS INSTIGATING PROJECTS
Additional new annual net income amounting to many dollars will be made possible for Mississippi farmers through a commercial egg and meat-type hog producing, financing and marketing project to be launched soon. The project is under the auspices of the Mississippi Federated Co-ops, with banks and other lending agencies and agricultural agencies collaborating.
